Sit down and write a story about something that happened to which you responded with the best you have in you. Read over your story once a day for a week.

Note: This exercise has been shown in published research to be associated with increasing general life satisfaction and happiness